1: Making Introductions

Introduction

Knowing how to introduce yourself politely to strangers is an important social skill, which you will need to use over and over again in your personal, social and professional life. Since there are many different ways of introducing oneself and others, an effective introduction requires you to have clear understanding of the situation, place and your own status vis-à-vis the person you want to approach.

Activity 1

Discuss the following questions with your class:

- Have you ever spoken to a stranger in a public place? Why?
- Has a stranger ever approached you on the road? How did you react?

Introducing Yourself

When you introduce yourself, your sentences should be in the following orders: signal, introduction and additional information and closure. For example: Hi (signal). I'm Nidhi Sharma (Introduction). I Work with Sarla Dixit (additional Information). It's been a pleasure speaking to you (closure).

Introductions can be roughly divided into two forms: formal and informal.

Formal: May I introduce myself? My name is Shyam Sundar, I work for Infosys.

Informal: Hello, I'm Renuka Shah. I'm Heera Mahajan's friend

If you have heard about the person or know him but have never met him before, this is the way to go about your introduction: Hello. You must be at Khera. My name is Sunil Sharma. Your friend Rajdeep speaks highly of you.

Exercise 1

Mark whether the following introductions are formal or informal.

- I don't think we have met. My name is Anil Kumar. I take care of sales in Maruti.
Formal/Informal: _____
- Hello there! I've seen you before. I'm Nisha. I think we met at Rashi's party.
Formal/Informal: _____
- Excuse me. Aren't you Robin Sharma? I'm Preeti Singh. I enjoy reading your books.
Formal/Informal: _____
- Mr Lall, allow me to introduce Sonia from the accounts department.
Formal/Informal: _____
- Ladies and gentlemen, I now introduce to you, the singing sensation of our times, Ms Rohini hinde!
Formal/Informal: _____

Introducing Yourself to Many

Sometimes you are required to introduce yourself when addressing a gathering before giving a speech or making a presentation.

Begin by saying:

- Hello. First of all, let me introduce myself. I'm...
- For those of you who don't know me, I'm...

While introducing yourself before a gathering, be very careful about your body language. Stand or sit comfortably but do not slouch. If you are nervous, try to hide it. Give a confident and pleasant smile while speaking, and make sure you are audible. Make eye contact with at least a few people, if not everyone.

Activity 2

Each student introduces himself to his partner and the partner responds to the introduction.

Activity 3

Introduce yourself in front of your class. Ask your teacher to give you feedback on how you can improve your introduction.

Introductions at the Office

Let's talk about introductions in the professional space. How you introduce yourself to your superiors should be different from how you introduce yourself to your peers or juniors. When approaching a senior, always introduce yourself first. Also, find out whether according to your office culture, should you be on first name basis with others or should you use titles such as Mr Khanna. If you're sitting, make sure you stand before introducing yourself.

Introducing yourself to your peers or juniors will be similar, though you can be a little more relaxed or informal. On most occasions, your juniors should introduce themselves to you first and not the other way round.

Introducing Others

When introducing others, look and talk to one person first and then dedicate your attention to the second person. In formal situations, it is always the younger person who is presented to the older, man to the woman and the junior to the senior.

For the purpose of explanation, look at this situation: You, Raj Choudhary and Aman Raut meet at an office party. You have to introduce Raj and Aman to each other. Aman is a senior and Raj is a junior. Since it's a formal situation, you have to first present the junior, in this case Raj Choudhary, to the senior, in this case Aman Raut.

First, you will give information about Raj, this is Aman Raut. He's a good friend of mine. There are no such rules for informal introductions.

Exercise 2

Read the following introductions and answer the questions.

- a. Rohit, May I introduce someone to you? This is Sareen Khurana.
Sareen, this is Rohit Malhotra. He's a colleague of mine.
Is it a formal or an informal introduction? _____
Can you tell who the senior here is? _____
- b. Manav, I'd like you to meet someone. This is Razwan.
Rizwan, this is Manav. He's good friend of mine.
Is it a formal or an informal introduction? _____
Can you tell who the senior here is? _____
- c. Shammi, this is Raja.
Raja, this is Shammi.
Is it a formal or an informal introduction? _____
Can you tell who the senior here is? _____
- d. Shruti, Nisha.
Nisha, Shruti.
Is it a formal or an informal introduction? _____
Can you tell who the senior here is? _____

Responding to introductions

When someone is introduced to you, you must greet them. There are no rules as to which party should use which greeting. Both the parties can use the same greeting if they want.

Greeting

I am pleased to meet you

It is nice to meet you.

Glad to meet you. (Informal)

Good to meet you (Informal)

Response to a greeting

Pleased to meet you too.

Nice to meet you too.

Glad to meet you too.

Same here. /Likewise

“How are you?” as greeting should only be used with people you know and not with someone who you are meeting for the first time.

“How do you do?” is a greeting which is not much used these days. However if it is used, the response to it would be to repeat “How do you do?” When you say “How do you do” you pronounce it “Howjyado” without pausing between words.

Activity 4

Divide into small groups of three. Now each one takes turns to introduce the other

Activity 5

Simulate the following situations. You may need one or two partners.

- It's your first day in college. You are introducing yourself to your fellow student.
- You are attending a walk-in-interview and you have to introduce yourself.
- You are talking your friend home for the first time and you have to introduce her/him to your mother.
- You are meeting an eminent person you admire in a meeting. You have to introduce yourself to him.
- Your parents come to college to meet your teacher. You have to introduce them to your teacher.
- You have to introduce yourself to a gathering that has come to listen to your talk.
- You have to informally introduce two of your friends to each other.
- Your father introduces you to his boss. You have to greet him.
- Your friend introduces you to one of his friends. You have to greet him.

2: Greeting People

Introduction

Anywhere you go – whether it is in school, college, your workplace or to a social gathering, greeting others is an everyday occurrence but at the same time, an important social tool which affects the way you further interact with the others.

Activity 1

What are the different ways in which you interact with each other? Discuss with your class.

Greeting Others

When someone introduces you to someone else, you must use a greeting to show that you are pleased to meet him. You will use either a formal or an informal greeting according to the situation. Some general or formal examples of greeting are:

It's nice to meet you.

It's a pleasure to meet you.

I am pleased to meet you.

Some informal examples of greeting are:

Hi!

Hi there!

Glad to meet you.

When you greet people you know very well, you can be informal with them. It would look awkward if you are too formal with them. You can even add a few questions to add to the friendliness. Here are a few examples:

How are You ?

How's it going? / How're you doing?

How's life?

What's up?

What's New?

Exercise 1

List the different situations which you will use formal or informal greetings.

Formal Situations	Informal Situations

Responding to a Friendly Question

How do you respond if someone asks a friendly question? You should answer the question and then you respond with another friendly question. This is how you will keep a conversation going.

Here are a few Examples:

A: How are You?

B: Very well thank you. And how about you?

A: How are You?

B: Fine, thank you. And You?

A: How are you?

B: Great! And how about you?

Exercise 2

Discuss with your partner and select the appropriate greeting for each occasion / situation from the box.

Merry Christmas!	Well done! Congratulations!	Bon Voyage!
Wish you all the best!	Welcome to our team!	I'm sorry. My condolences.
Never mind! Better luck next time.

Occasion/Situation	Greeting/Message

Greeting in Different Cultures

The most common way of greeting others is by shaking hands. However, different countries and cultures all over the world have their own ways of greeting others. In India, for example, one common form of greeting is to fold our hands into a Namaste. Cheek kissing is an accepted form of greeting in social gatherings in many western countries. In East Asian countries, bowing before others is common.

If you are travelling to a different country, it is best to do a bit of research beforehand on the greeting etiquette of the country. However, even if you do not know about the greeting customs of a place, you can usually manage to get by if you have pleasant and welcoming body language.

Body Language

While greeting others, it is important to be aware of your own body language, as well as others'. If the other person is showing disinterest or discomfort through their body language (if, for example, they are constantly checking their watch or looking over their shoulders), then the polite thing is to move away and end the conversation.

Make sure that your own body language is open, friendly and non-threatening. Be careful to maintain a proper distance from the other person _ do not stand too close or too far. Smile often and look into the other person's eyes. When you shake hands, use a firm but not crushing grip.

Telephone Greetings

While talking on the telephone casually, we usually begin with a simple "hello?" However, while handling official calls at the workplace, you need to be more careful. A pleasant phone greeting creates the mood for the conversation, as the listener often responds in a similar mood. If we sound rude or depressed on the phone, chances are the caller too will respond negatively.

While greeting on the phone, be natural and pleasant. Make sure that your voice sounds upbeat and enthusiastic.

Keep official greetings brief and to-the-point. Excessively long greeting can be a waste of time and therefore, might irritate the caller.

Don't try to follow a script for official conversations. Focus being helpful and responding to the requirements of the situation. There are no stock phrases which can help you carry out a successful phone conversation.

Activity 2

With a partner, act out a telephone conversation between an angry customer and a pleasant and helpful customer care executive. Change roles and act it out again.

Activity 3

Simulate the following situations. You may need more than one partner for a few situations.

- Your friend introduces you to his other friend. Greet him informally.
- Your friend introduces you to his father. Greet him in a formal way.
- Your friend didn't do well in an interview and has failed to secure a job.
- Your friend has lost his father.
- Your friend visits your workplace for the first time.
- Your neighbor is blessed with a baby.
- You have come to visit your sick friend in the hospital. You have to greet her.
- You have come to visit your sick friend in the hospital and you are about to take leave.
- It's New Year and you have to greet your friend.
- You are meeting your friend after a very long time.

3: Talking about Family

Introduction

Do you agree that?

- Family is the most important social unit?
- Having a family is an important human need?
- It is good to live in a big family with one's grandparents, uncles, aunts and cousins?
- People who live alone or away from families are essentially unhappy people?

Now, read these news items and revisit the questions.

Working Woman Face More Instances of Domestic Violence

A new study on domestic violence has shown shocking results: working women face almost double the amount of domestic violence than women who don't work.

Almost everyone who feels concern about the condition of women in our country and is working for the promotion of women's rights will agree that one way for women to battle their cultural subjugation is for them to become financially secure and independent by earning their own money. The image of the Indian working woman-smart, successful and independent- has been promoted through countless media, including television commercials and films.

However, this image of the assertive working woman tells only half the truth. When researchers decided to dig deeper into the reason for increased domestic violence against working women, the picture that emerged was ugly, but not unfamiliar. "When a woman starts her own income, her position in the family is definitely empowered. However, this empowerment is not accepted by many within the family," a leading social worker recently said, adding, "Those who wish to see women fulfilling only the traditionally acceptable roles of the wife, the mother and the homemaker do not find it easy to accept her as a wage-earner, capable of making independent decisions on family economics. This, then, leads to differences within the family- between the women and her husband or her in-laws-which, in turn, leads to her persecution-physical and mental-by the family.”

Cases of domestic violence against women are much higher among couples when the husband is unemployed or has recently lost his job. The Indian understanding of family systems is often rigid, with men playing the role of the “bread-earners” while the women are the “care-givers”. Any overturning of this traditional setup can lead to social disapproval and frustration on the man’s part, which he vents through violence.

The findings of study show how far Indian society is from accepting new kinds of roles for women within new and different family systems.

Adapted from an article in The Hindu titled “Working Face More Domestic Violence in India Study”

Domestic Violence Causes More Death than Terror Activities

Do you agree that India would have been a “peaceful” nation if only we had not been plagued by internal and external terror activities? Well, those who agree need to take a close look at behavior of husbands in our nation’s smallest and most “secure” unit – the family.

A new survey by the United Nations shows that the number of dowry- death was four times the number of deaths caused by terror activities in 2009. In fact, domestic violence has grown – in numbers as well as the level of cruelty-alarmingly in the last five years, and is the major contributor to domestic crime.

The report also stated that more and more women are now coming out to formally report instances of domestic violence, but the increase in FIRs is not proportional to the increase in violence. The greater number of cause of in-house terror is because of dowry related problems, which shows that even today, marriage is seen as a get-rich-quick mechanism by many, who resort to violence when the women and her family fail to deliver according to their wishes. This, in spite of the Domestic Violence Law of 2005 which is considered by many to be a turning point in laws for protection of women.

Adapted from an article in the Hindustan Times titled “Domestic Violence Kills more in India than Terror Strikes.”

Activity 1

Discusses with your class.

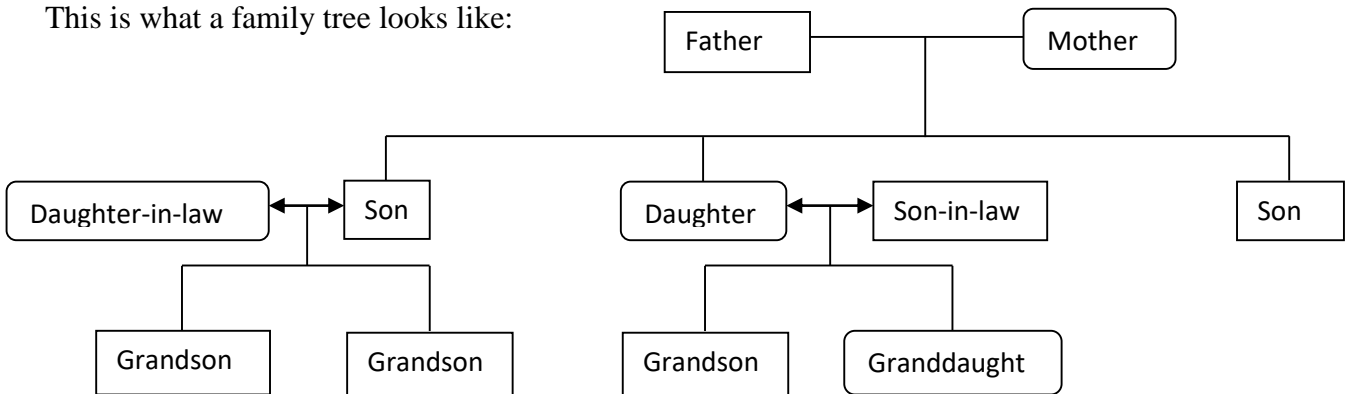

- What is a family?
- Would you consider your pets your family too? Why/Why not?
- Why is having a family important?

A Family Tree

A Family tree tells us how each one in the family is related to others in the family and even their ancestors.

This is what a family tree looks like:

Exercise 1

Draw your own family tree. But, use proper nouns instead of common nouns. In other words use your own name instead of “Son” or “Daughter”, After you do so, explain to your class how each member is related to the other.

Use colored lines and shapes to describe the relationship of the family members with one another. For example, the different sons are also each other’s brothers; the mother and father are also grandparents, and so on. How many different relationships do you see emerging from the tree?

Now, write how old each one in the tree is. In your class, take turns to speak about the family starting with the oldest couple. Use short and simple sentences.

Naming the Family

Here are some commonly used English words used to describe relationships: father, mother, brother, sister, nephew, niece, cousin, uncle, aunt, grandfather, grandmother, paternal grandfather, maternal grandmother, stepfather etc,

In the context of family relationships the word “cousin” refers to the child (male or female) of your uncle or aunt. The usage “cousin sister” or “cousin brother” is incorrect.

Your “great-grandmother” is your grandmother or grandfather’s mother. Similarly, your “great-grandfather” is your grandfather or grandmother’s father.

The phrase ‘in-law’ is added to the relationship if it is a relationship by marriage. Therefore, your husband’s sister is your “sister-in-law”.

Exercise 2

Look up the dictionary for the meanings of the following pairs of words:

- elder/older
- smaller/younger
- window/widower

Exercise 3

Go back to your family tree and talk about your favorite family member to your partner. Give reasons for choosing them as your favorite, for example: I like my father best because he takes care of me, or, I like my mother best because she is a good friend.

Exercise 4

There are three couples: Ravi and Neha, Sandeep and Sanjana, and Atul and Bhiravi. Ravi, Sandeep and Bhairavi are siblings; their parents are Ramesh and Aparna. Bhairavi's mother is Sonu's paternal grandmother. Sandeep has two sons Rihi and Roshan. Atul and Bhairavi have no children

- a. Based on the chart you have just created, fill in the blanks.
  - i. Ravi is Neha's _____
  - ii. Aparna is Ramesh's _____
  - iii. Sonu is Aparna's _____
  - iv. Ramesh is Sonu's _____
  - v. _____ is bhairavi's father.
  - vi. Sandeep is Sonu's _____
  - vii. Atul is Ravi's _____

Activity 2

Each group enacts the role of a family. The activity begins with the one member introducing the other members of his family.

1. This is my wife.
2. This is my daughter.
3. My brother's name is Mohan.

Talking about Your family During job Interviews

During a job interview, you are sometime asked, "Describe your family." Ideally, you shouldn't have to answer questions about your family background at a job interview. However, if asked, talk in brief about your immediate family. Do not give long explanations unless they are in some way associated with the job you are being interviewed for. For example, you could say: Both my parents are bank managers and it is from them that I learnt to enjoy mathematics. My younger brother is still in school.

- iv) To groom the personality of the students.
- v) To develop the soft skills of the students.
- vi) To make them confident and creative in life skills.
- vii) To make them competent in English so as to help them to pursue higher studies
- viii) To develop their overall personality for better catering to the real life situations.
- ix) To make them fit for employability.

The Context: The students who seek admission in our college come from vernacular medium moreover they do not have the exposure of the English language so their communication skill in English is very poor. Owing to lack of proficiency in communicative English, they feel shy and nervous and therefore their personality is stunted. Hence The Department of English has decided to begin the classes of soft skills to improve the Communication Skills that will positively assist them to groom their personality and make them fit to grab job opportunities.

1: Making Introductions

Introduction

Knowing how to introduce yourself politely to strangers is an important social skill, which you will need to use over and over again in your personal, social and professional life. Since there are many different ways of introducing oneself and others, an effective introduction requires you to have clear understanding of the situation, place and your own status vis-à-vis the person you want to approach.

Title:

स्पर्धा परीक्षा देणा—या महाविद्यालयीन विद्यार्थ्यांचा ग्रंथालयाच्या माध्यमातून वाचन व व्यक्तीमत्त्व विकास

विषय निवडीचे कारण :

संस्थेमधील काही उच्च दर्जाची मुल्ये व सामाजीक जबाबदा—यांमुळे महाविद्यालयाचा दर्जा उंचावतो. त्या अनुषंगाने महाविद्यालये ही सामाजीक क्षेत्रे म्हणून देखील ओळखले जातात. याच उद्देशाने रेणुका महाविद्यालयामधील ग्रंथालयाने काही सामाजीक सामाजीक व शैक्षणिक जबाबदा—या स्विकारत महाविद्यालयाचे नाव गुणवत्तेच्या बाबतीत उंचावण्याचा प्रयत्न केला आहे. त्यापैकीच एक महत्वाचे पाऊल म्हणजे विद्यार्थ्यांचा दृष्टीने एक महत्वाचा उपक्रम हे होय.

आज उच्च शिक्षणाचा विचार करतांना अनेक पैलु आपणास दिसतात. उच्च शिक्षणामध्ये विद्यापीठे व त्यामाध्यमाने महाविद्यालये व महाविद्यालयीन ग्रंथालये यांची भुमीका विद्यार्थ्यांच्या दृष्टीने फारच महत्वाची झालेली आपणास आढळून येते म्हणजेच त्यांची जबाबदारी देखील वाढलेली आहे. शैक्षणिक संस्था व त्यातील ग्रंथालये ही केवढ ज्ञानाचीच संस्थाने नव्हेत तर त्यांची विद्यार्थ्यांच्या दृष्टीने सामाजीक व शैक्षणिक बांधीलकी देखील महत्वाची आहे. हीच बाब या विषयाला अधिक महत्त्व देते.

Computer Fundamentals

Introduction: The machine, 'Computer' which we use now-a-days in our day-to-day business or home, is nothing but an electronic machine which can perform very accurately, a number of calculations. In a fraction of a second it can store a huge data to handle. Computer is basically a machine using which we can do our work quickly and accurately. In Office Automation, generally computer is used for letter writing, report writing, drawing, graphs, making the right conclusion from the given statistics, and also future results on the basis of the current parameters or progress, so as to take corrective steps, if needed.

History of Computer

The modern computer is not a one-day creation. Many changes have been made on it, to develop it up to this stage. The roots of invention of Computer have been there in 19th century. In 1837, the English Mathematician Charles Babbage created a machine which could do calculations. This machine was named by him as 'Analytical Engine'. This Analytical Engine was proved to be the basic framework of today's computer.

Computer Generations

First Generation Computers (1940 to 1956) - In 1950, the first computer was invented in which the valves (Vacuum Tubes) were used in it. Its size and price were also too much big.

Second Generation Computers (1956 to 1963) - In 1960, the second generation of computers were invented, in which transistors were used in the place of delicate vacuum tubes. This computer had more speed than the previous one.

Third Generation Computers (1964 to 1971) - The third generation computers were smaller in size. In the third generation of computers, integrated circuits (I.C.) were used. The speed of third generation computers increased than the previous generation and due to the use of I.Cs, it never became warm.

Fourth Generation Computers (1971 to 1990) - Due to the use of Microprocessors, the fourth generation computers became very small sized computers.

Fifth Generation Computers (1990 till today and future) - In the Fifth Generation Computers, it is proposed to create such type of computers, which can think and take decisions on their own. (Computers having 'Artificial Intelligence, Robots')

Characteristics of Computer:

- Speed: The speed of computer is very fast. It can perform thousands of processes within a second.
- Accuracy: Computer not only works fast but it works accurate also. The degree of accuracy of computer is much higher than humankind. Errors may occur by computer but that is also due to human mistakes while providing input to the computer or the mistake occurs by programmer while designing the software.
- Diligence: Computer doesn't get tired due to the monotonous work. Even though it leads to perform the same type of work continuously, it doesn't get bored as well as it doesn't make mistakes which generally happens in case of human being.
- Ample Storage space: We can store a huge data in the computer's memory. We can increase the computer memory as per our requirements we can have an ample storage by adding the required memory which is not possible in case of human being.
- Inability to Think & Emote: Computer doesn't have a rational intellectuality as well as it doesn't have any emotion and feelings.
- Automaticity: Due to the use of computer most of the operations are done automatically, human being has to perform few tasks but computer gives a lot of outputs which has been automatically processed by it.

7) Versatility: Computer can perform wide range of operations in variety of segments. It can work for Entertainment, business, communication, banking, industries, in weather conditions etc.

Basic Applications of Computers

Like every other machine, even this machine needs to be handled cautiously to get what is desired, because even though it is put before the user with some basic obvious and awe inspiring facilities, still if the user wishes, he can program it the way he wants the computer to behave. This means that the user can make it do something silly or even harmful, which it will do merrily, like Aladdin's Demon. But if put to serious usage, computer is an indispensable machine used in every field, simply because of its essential features like accuracy, high speed and tremendous memory (the space for storage), and also its decision making capacity. The reason why it can take decisions is that, because if it is made ready with a set of instructions in the desired manner, which can be stored as long as possible, so that the same instructions need not be given to it every time, it is to be used for routine tasks.

The huge memory capacity of the computer can be very useful in the banking sector. Because of computer's tremendous speed and accuracy, the account holder does not have to wait long for knowing the balance amount on his account and the interest on that balance. Big organizations need to store every kind of information like its daily transactions, the information about its customers and vendors, the relations between them, stocks of its products etc. In such cases, the computer is the only reliable medium of storage, because of its less occupancy of physical space, but a huge memory nevertheless.

With the help of printer attached to the computer, we can give the accurate bill to the customer within seconds. We can easily fill up the returns of income tax, sales tax and feed daily business transactions to the computer. We can also get the acknowledgements quickly from the printers.

Computer is also useful in libraries to record the information of readers like their names, serial numbers and number of the books taken. By just entering the name of a particular book, we can get all the information about the readers, like who had taken the book and when. If the reader returns the book after the due date, it can also calculate the amount of fine. Similarly, by entering the name of the reader, we will get the name of the book taken and the period. We can also get date-wise or month-wise details of library transactions, just by giving a single command to the computer.

Computers are also used in schools and colleges, CBT for preparing results.

For making the list of voters and in the offices like Govt. office, Telephone office, Electricity Board office, Hospitals, computer is very useful device. In these offices computer is very helpful for doing critical calculations, analysis, bill printing and drawing different sketches.

Now a days computer has become a source of entertainment. We can watch movies; can hear songs on a computer. We can play different games on computer.

Classification of Computer

Computer can be classified in following types -

A) Analog Computer: Analog Computer is a computing device that operates on continuous range of values. The results given by the analog computers will only be approximate since they deal with quantities that vary continuously. It generally deals with physical variables such as voltage, pressure, temperature, speed, etc. e.g. Speedometer, Voltage indicators used in Stabilizers, etc.

B) Digital Computer: On the other hand a digital computer operates on digital data such as numbers. It uses binary number system in which there are only two digits '0' and '1'. Each one is called a bit.

The digital computer is designed using digital circuits in which there are two levels (or an input or output signal). These two levels are known as logic 0 and logic 1. Digital Computer can give more accurate and faster results.

Digital computer is well suited for solving complex problems in engineering and technology. Hence digital computers have an increasing use in the field of design, research and data processing.

digits ('0' and '1' are those Binary digits). Out of these, single '0' or '1' is considered as a 'bit'. 8 such bits makes One Byte and 1024 bytes means 1 Kilo byte (KB). Similarly, 1024 KB makes 1 Megabyte (MB) and 1024 such megabytes together makes 1 Gigabyte (GB), where as 1024 Giga bytes turn into 1 Terabyte.

There are Two types of computer memory.

1) Internal Memory 2) External Memory

A) A and L Unit (Arithmetic and Logical Unit): Arithmetic and Logical unit performs all the Arithmetic and Logical calculations. The data entered through the input unit, is carried to ALU for doing calculations, analysis and comparison. All these operations are done under this unit and the formatted result, is again stored into the memory unit. Obviously while the process going on, control unit keeps control on it. The role of Control Unit and ALU unit in Computer is played together by a single device called as Microprocessor.

(See Fig. 4) Thus Microprocessor is considered as the 'Brain' of Computer. There are different models of Microprocessors available in the market according to their manufacturing companies. Intel, IBM, Apple, AMD, etc. are leaders among the Microprocessor manufacturing companies. Some popular models of Microprocessors contain 'P4', 'Cyril', 'Cyril' by IBM, 'Athlon' by AMD, etc.

A & L unit helps the computer for showing the formatted output on screen, which is stored into the memory and it is also helpful for getting printout of the final result as and when required.

Register: It is a small electronic part in which the input data which is to be processed and the processed output data, both are temporarily stored.

Adder / Subtractor: Adder & Subtractor are two digital circuits which do additions and subtractions of binary numbers respectively.

Accumulator: It is also a kind of register, which is used to store the intermediate results in Arithmetic and Logical Process.

C) Control Unit: When the information is given to the computer, it is stored into the memory and while the information is under calculations, the formatted output is proceeded towards output unit and while doing this, the control unit keeps its control on the overall process. The control unit is a very important part of the CPU, which control all the processes performed by the other units of computer.

Computer Memory:

We have learnt earlier that there are two types of Computer Memory, i.e. Internal & External. Now we are going to learn them in detail.

Primary Memory (Internal Memory): It is the Basic or Primary type of Computer Memory. The computer can not be used without the Internal Memory. It is called Internal because this memory is located on the Mother Board of Computer itself. This memory is in the form of Silicon Chips.

Internal Memory of Computer is further divided in three parts,

- RAM
- ROM
- Cache

i) RAM (Random Access Memory): This memory is made up of electronic parts. (See Fig. 5) Any electronic part can work till the electric supply exists. When the supply is cut off, the electronic part stops working. This type of computer memory can be used only when there is electric supply provided to it. When the electric supply cuts off, memory contents are lost. That is why this memory is known as 'Volatile Memory', e.g. if the electric supply cuts off, when we are writing a letter then we are bound to lose all the information residing in RAM. To avoid this we have to store the information into

'Permanent Memory', which is also called as 'Auxiliary memory' or 'Secondary memory'. We can retrieve the information stored into this memory whenever we want.

ii) ROM (Read only memory) - We can only read the information stored into ROM, but we cannot make any changes into the existing information, which is why it is called as 'Read Only Memory (ROM)'. Though we turn off the computer, this information remains as it is, because it has some prewritten programs in it to help start the machine.

iii) Cache Memory: Cache Memory is a temporary memory which acts as a buffer in between the RAM and the Processor. It holds the data which is immediately going to be processed, till processor needs it. If the cache doesn't have that data, the processor waits till it is loaded from main memory into the cache.

Secondary Memory (External Memory): External Memory is the secondary memory provided to computers other than its internal memory. This memory contains some memory devices as follows-

Hard Disk (Magnetic Disk): Generally huge in capacity, for storing principally ready-made software packages to work on. Secondly to store user's work done with the help of those packages. Because of its memory and price concerns, it's not moved frequently from place to place. Magnetic disks are generally used for storing large amount of data. It contains more than one (generally 3-4) magnetic disks (platters) in it. (See Fig. 6) There is a coating of Iron Oxide on the disk. More than one disk are used into the Hard Disk. Information is stored on it by Electro-Magnetic method using Electro-Magnetic feature. Information is stored on both the surfaces of every disk. For both the surfaces of every disk there are two heads to read and write and thus there are many heads in one Hard disk. Hence the speed of reading and writing the information on the disk is very high.

Optical Disk: In this type of Disk information is stored on the plastic disk with the help of laser rays instead of using magnetic field. Today these types of disks are used for exchanging the information more often than floppies. There are following three types of optical disks according to the capacity and technology. (See Fig. 7)

- CD (Compact Disk): These types of Blank CDs are available in the market. We can store various types of data on these types of CDs such as historical data, database, data of the book prepared by the computer, etc. But it cannot be erased once it is stored on the CD. It has 650 MB to 1GB capacity. We can store data only from its one side.
- DVD (Digital Versatile Disk): Digital Versatile Disks are the disks based on new technology that have more storage capacity than CD. It has 4.7 GB to 17 GB capacity.
- Flash Drive (Pen Drive): Now a days this type of memory devices is available and very popular as they are very much suitable to use. (See Fig. 8) These devices are used as

HTML :- HTML means Hyper Text Markup Language. It is a programming / scripting language for Webpage designing.

Web page :- A 'Web page' means collective page of information. On such a page sometimes you get information in Graphics, shortcut, text etc. With the help of short cut, we can find out more information about a certain 'word' or 'subject' or another page or website on the screen. This is called Hyper-link. Hyper link is connected to a certain matter on another page. On the first page of the website an index of Hyper-links is given. If you move the mouse pointer on any of these Hyper-links the pointer changes its shape to a 'Hand'. This is called Hyper-Text which is shown differently than the Simple Text. The colour of Hyperlink is different from the other text or the words in Hyperlink are underlined. When the mouse is clicked on this Hyperlink we get connected to its page. This means, Hyperlink connects the current page of a website to another specific page of the same site.

Web Browser :-

With the help of this program we can see the various world wide websites. We need a specific software on our PC, for surfing the Internet. Web browser is that application software which is used to surf the Internet. With the help of Web browser software, we can open any website and see the web pages in it. Microsoft Internet Explorer, Google Chrome, Netscape Navigator are some of the popular web-browsers. With a browser, information on a single page can be seen which is called web page.

Functions of Web Browser :-

The web browser provides information to the user on his PC using the internet connection. With this web Browser, the following facilities are available :-

- 1) Browsing Surfing :- To get information by opening different websites is called web Browsing or web surfing.
- 2) Downloading :- The process of transferring information on the website to the external memory of PC is called downloading.

'Internet Explorer' Web Browser :-

Internet explorer (See fig. 1) is the most widely used World Wide Web browser. It comes with the Microsoft Windows operating system. We can also download it from Microsoft's Web site. It is the Web browser developed by Microsoft corporation. In Windows Operating System, the web browser 'Internet Explorer' is pre-installed.

How to open 'Internet Explorer' ?

- 1) Double click on the Internet Explorer icon on the Desktop.
- 2) or if there is no 'Internet Explorer' icon on the desktop, then click 'Start' button on Taskbar. Click on All Programs – Internet Explorer.

'Google Chrome' Web Browser:-

Google chrome is a web browser which is developed by the company 'Google Corporation'. If this browser is already installed in your computer, you can see its icon on the desktop. You can open this browser by double clicking on that icon.

About google chrome:-

We can see the name of the open website at the left corner of the Chrome window. It is called as 'Tab' of that website.

We can see button bar under the Tab which contains following options:- (See Fig.1)

- (1) Back word Button / Arrow
- (2) Forward Button / Arrow
- (3) Reload Arrow

INTERNET & E-MAIL • 83

- (4) Home Button
- (5) Address Bar
- (6) Setting option

Fig. No. 1

Backward Arrow Button : We can use this arrow button to open the website we have visited latest. We can open that website by clicking on it and afterwards the arrow button gets disabled.

Forward Arrow Button : If we have used 'Backward' arrow button to see the last website, we can switch over to the next website by using 'Forward' arrow button.

Reload Button : Sometimes website doesn't get loaded properly. In that case, to reload that website properly, we can use this arrow button. We can use this option by right clicking on any website.

Home Button: We can open 'Google' website by clicking on this button.

Address bar : When we type the name of any website on this bar, whatever we can see in the address bar is called as Web address or URL. URL means Uniform Resource Locator.

Setting : Last option is 'Settings'. We can manage some settings of Google Chrome browser using this option.

E-mail :-

Any correspondences between two people require their respective addresses. Generally this is done by postcard, envelopes etc. But in this 21st century, Internet is used for the same. Now the question arises how this correspondence is done with the help of internet?

The correspondence done with the help of internet is 'E-mail'. The full form is 'Electronic Mail'. Now the problem is which 'address' is used for communication on Internet? For this you require your own e-mail address which is termed as e-mail ID (Identification). Before sending e-mail to anyone you should have your own e-mail ID. If not, you have to create one on internet. Creating E-mail ID is called opening 'E-mail' account. As you open a bank account for your financial transactions, you have to open an e-mail account on any of the following websites like Hotmail, Gmail, Yahoo mail, etc.

Characteristics of E-mail :-

- 1) Sending & receiving e-mail is very easy and it is free of charge.
- 2) The speed of sending and receiving E-mail is very fast. It benefits in very quick communication.
- 3) E-mail communication can be done from any geographical location in the world.
- 4) E-mail does not lead to any pollution or garbage.
- 5) Every E-mail has two parts – Subject and Body. Similar to ordinary e-mail has two parties i.e. sender and receiver. We can add the information about sender at the end of any mail. It is called as 'Signature'.
- 6) We can attach a DOC file, PDF file or a photo image file with an e-mail.
- 7) We can reply to the received email. Even any received E-mail can be forwarded to any other person.
- 8) We can send CC (Carbon Copy / Courtesy copy) or BCC (Blind Carbon Copy / Blind Courtesy copy) of an e-mail to anybody.

(2019-2020)

Subject : (Library Science)

Faculty : Humanities

Title:

स्पर्धा परीक्षा देणा—या महाविद्यालयीन विद्यार्थ्यांचा ग्रंथालयाच्या माध्यमातून वाचन व व्यक्तीमत्त्व विकास

विषय निवडीचे कारण :

संस्थेमधील काही उच्च दर्जाची मुल्ये व सामाजीक जबाबदा—यांमुळे महाविद्यालयाचा दर्जा उंचावतो. त्या अनुषंगाने महाविद्यालये ही सामाजीक क्षेत्रे म्हणून देखील ओळखले जातात. याच उद्देशाने रेणुका महाविद्यालयामधील ग्रंथालयाने काही सामाजीक सामाजीक व शैक्षणिक जबाबदा—या स्विकारत महाविद्यालयाचे नाव गुणवत्तेच्या बाबतीत उंचावण्याचा प्रयत्न केला आहे. त्यापैकीच एक महत्वाचे पाऊल म्हणजे विद्यार्थ्यांचा दृष्टीने एक महत्वाचा उपक्रम हे होय.

आज उच्च शिक्षणाचा विचार करतांना अनेक पैलु आपणास दिसतात. उच्च शिक्षणामध्ये विद्यापीठे व त्यामाध्यमाने महाविद्यालये व महाविद्यालयीन ग्रंथालये यांची भुमीका विद्यार्थ्यांच्या दृष्टीने फारच महत्वाची झालेली आपणास आढळून येते म्हणजेच त्यांची जबाबदारी देखील वाढलेली आहे. शैक्षणिक संस्था व त्यातील ग्रंथालये ही केवढ ज्ञानाचीच संस्थाने नव्हेत तर त्यांची विद्यार्थ्यांच्या दृष्टीने सामाजीक व शैक्षणिक बांधीलकी देखील महत्वाची आहे. हीच बाब या विषयाला अधिक महत्त्व देते.
